The Office of Sexual Assault Prevention & Response seeks to eliminate harm, violence, and oppression through the intersectional promotion of gender equity and social justice. We advocate for the compassionate, just treatment of survivors and collaborate with our Harvard community to effect attitudinal and behavioral change.

All OSAPR programming is rooted in a public health approach to preventing harm, violence and oppression, centering equity, intersectionality, and social justice. We offer workshops, trainings, discussions and events to examine how our identities, relationship dynamics, community values, and societal systems determine the role we each have in ending sexual and gender-based violence.

Contact osapr@fas.harvard.edu to request a workshop and program for your group, department, or organization. We strive to meet all requests and will work with you to tailor a program that best fits your needs.
The OSAPR hotline is a 24-hour service answered by a trained rape crisis counselor. Please call if you are experiencing emotional distress or are in need of immediate and/or urgent accompaniment and support.

617.495.9100

You can make an appointment by contacting our office at:

617-496-5636
osapr@fas.harvard.edu

Please visit www.osapr.harvard.edu for more information.

Harvard University Health Services
Smith Campus Center, Suite 624
Monday – Friday 9 AM – 5 PM
by appointment

Title IX Resource Guide
Sexual and Gender-Based Harassment

For information about all Harvard University resources for community members who have experienced or are experiencing sexual or gender-based harassment, please visit the resourceguide.titleix.harvard.edu.